

To Pour or Not to Pour

Written by Editor
Sunday, 26 July 2015 20:59

Watercolor Paintings by Pat Wilund at the SOBA Gallery

The Society of Bluffton Artists Gallery is pleased to welcome Pat Wilund as the featured artist August 3 through September 5. Pat will be exhibiting a body of new watercolor paintings she has named “To Pour or Not to Pour.” In this work Pat experiments with traditional and non-traditional methods of painting the backgrounds for her subject matter.

In the “pouring” method Pat uses whimsical, sometimes flamboyant colors and shapes formed by a controlled serendipity. She manipulates puddles of color to suggest mood, shape and movement. In the “not to pour” method, Pat paints her subject matter and backgrounds in a textbook watercolorist manner, using traditional brushstrokes. The viewer interprets less, but spends more time analyzing detail, color layering and perfection of technique. Pat dares the viewer to make a decision on what methodology speaks to them – do you enjoy an artwork with more suggestion, or with less?

Pat has been practicing and showing her watercolors for the last 10 years in the Bluffton

To Pour or Not to Pour

Written by Editor

Sunday, 26 July 2015 20:59

sobagallery.com

~~SECRET//NOFORN//NF~~ ~~Dissemination of this document is prohibited.~~