

"Love's action. It isn't talk and it never has been." - Beach Music

The friends of Pat Conroy – including his wife Cassandra King – are currently raising funds and seeking volunteers to help create a living memorial to the beloved writer here in his adopted hometown of Beaufort.

Pat started his working life in Beaufort as a teacher, then went on to become one of America's best loved writers, revered for his extraordinary storytelling abilities, his truth-telling courage, and his great heart. The Pat Conroy Literary Center will provide space for book clubs and writing groups, offer master classes in poetry, memoir and fiction, and give support and encouragement to both emerging and advanced writers of all ages. The Center will cultivate a passionate and inclusive reading and writing community in honor of our local legend, who dedicated his life to spreading his love for literature and writing to future generations.

Julia Randel Volunteers & Eugene Norris Mentorship Program

The board of the PCLC is seeking two groups of volunteers, each named after one

